NARRATIVE Unit number two was Southbound on South Washington street when unit number one turned left in front of unit number two, causing unit number two to strike unit number one on the passengers side of the vehicle. Unit number one had been Northbound on South Washington street and was attempting to turn left into a private drive. The intersection is regulated by a traffic light for Washington street and private drives to the East and West, and when I reviewed video footage from the Speedway gas station I could see that the traffic light was green for North and South traffic until just after the crash took place.					The diagram shows a T-junction where South Washington Street (a two-lane road) meets Private Drive (a one-lane road). A traffic light is located on South Washington Street. A car is shown turning left from South Washington Street onto Private Drive, and another car is shown driving straight through the intersection. Arrows indicate the direction of travel for both vehicles.
